

Contextual Worship: Fort McKinley, Dayton
Jon Morgan ~ jmorgan@ginghamsburg.org ~ 937-277-7484

1. Determining the need is like a knock-knock joke.

- Do I hear a knock at the door?
- Who’s there?
- Who’s really there? Why are you knocking?

**The same procedure is used for determining ministry team.*

---

---

---

---

2. People are funny when you lead change.

- Whom does this new ministry impact?
- How much time do I have to communicate the vision?
- How clear is the vision?

---

---

---

---

3. Finding new resources can be a joke. (i.e., your finance chair will get a good chuckle out of your request for more money.)

- What resources do you already have?
- Are you willing to start off with good enough and aim for great?
- How can you sell the vision to donors?

---

---

---

---

4. Laughter is a necessity in new ministry starts.

- What can possibly go wrong?
- Is your team good at improv?
- Who will laugh with me?

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

Contextualized Worship Resources

1. What are the key elements of your worship services and worship culture?

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

2. Who are the newcomers you are striving to reach?

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

3. What are you learning about their preferences and previous worship experiences? How will you learn more?

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

4. What adjustments or additions are you making so your worship experiences are more impactful for newcomers?

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

5. How are you shaping worship so that you interconnect current worshipers with newcomers to form one inclusive body of Christ?

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

Copyrights

The West Ohio Conference of the United Methodist Church (WOC) reserves all copyrights in this work. United Methodist entities may use these materials without prior permission or royalty for non-commercial, religious purposes, on the condition that you prominently display the following attribution: “These copyrighted materials are used with the permission of The West Ohio Conference of the United Methodist Church.”